There's a bit of the beast in every bug.

It doesn't take much to unleash the savage fury of a Volkswagen.
Take almost any old VW, replace the body, make a few simple adjustments, and you've got a Formula Vee racer.
How can a mild-mannered, practical, everyday Volkswagen convert to easily into something so delightfully impractical?
In the words of the Formula Vee International Manual: "Volkswagen components seem to have been made expressly for use in a racing car."
"The engine, air-cooled and mostly aluminum, is light for its power output and already adapted to the rear-engine concept of modern racing cars."
"Its rugged construction provides a power plant which seems to be practically indestructible, even at racing speeds."
"Operating costs are amazingly low. One set of tires will ordinarily last more than a season and one oil change a year is sufficient."
It seems that the same things that make the VW a sensible car for people who aren't in a particular hurry to get somewhere also make the Formula Vee a sensible car for people who are in a big hurry to get nowhere.

Thought of the Week

To make heads of the faults of others, and tell them over every day, is infernal.
If you want to know how devils feel, you do know if you are such a one. H. W. Beecher 1813-1887

GREATEST CHALLENGE

A senior college student recently remarked: "I haven't the slightest interest in business. It's stuffy and dull and rigid. Business executives are selfish, narrow-minded and lacking in imagination. All they care about is profits. . . . I want to do something useful. I want to help eliminate poverty and disease and slum conditions. . . . I'd like a little fun and excitement. Business? That's not for me!"

The head of one of the country's largest retailing concerns, Mr. Lester A. Burcham, has replied to this student, and to the apparently large number of young people who hold similar views, in a masterful discussion of business and the free market. He shows how profits are the backbone of national growth and well-being. He describes the challenges and opportunities of business in the marketplace and the necessity of the successful enterprise to continually advance, and so contribute to the phenomenal rise of our nation.

As a practical matter, the progressive profitable business enterprise is doing more to remedy the most pressing social problems of our time in its role of taxpayer and employer than anything else. And as far as excitement is concerned, says Mr. Burcham, "Challenges, in my opinion, are more prevalent in the marketplace or business world than in any other field of activity because change is occurring so rapidly. The swift stream of new inventions, new products, new methods of production and distribution, changing demands of consumers, changing patterns of population, changing competition do not allow businessmen to get in a rut or become complacent."

The greatest challenge we all face is the preservation of freedom to manage, to test and try, to move ahead with boldness of spirit in the hope of reasonable reward. In other words, the preservation of our United States system of government and free enterprise.

CIA Aid To Leftwingers

The revelations concerning Central Intelligence Agency financial assistance to organizations on the domestic scene, and the use of so-called conduit foundations to aid these groups, understandably is causing a chain reaction of protest.

Ironically, American conservatives, who long have defended the CIA against criticism by leftists who want to eliminate U. S. security arrangements, now find that the agency has been pouring out money to a variety of outfits that are socialist in nature and that are highly critical of vigorous American action against communism.

For example, it has come to light that Norman Thomas, the former Socialist Party leader, has been head of an organization known as the Institute of International Labor Research, which received about $1 million in CIA funds to organize left-of-center parties throughout Latin America. The faculty of the Institute even included Jan Boich, the Dominican political leader who led the communists' grab power in Santo Domingo.

The threads of this one organization's operations lead in many directions. It develops, for example, that Associate Justice William O. Douglas, the most radical of the Supreme Court judges and an advocate of U. S. recognition of Red China, was a board member of a center set up by the parent Institute.

More than $1 million in CIA funds also was channeled to the ultra-radical National Student Association. An interesting sidelight on these gifts was that the CIA once coughed up $140,000 to the NSA conduit foundation which was used for leftist purposes having nothing to do with the conduct of the cold war.

The United States needs the best intelligence service it can develop. But there is no possible justification for using secret appropriations to finance leftwing groups which consistently work against the interests of the United States in the cold war. If the CIA has been infiltrated by left-of-center elements, the machinery and the facts. Victory in the cold war will never be achieved, if CIA funds are aiding socialist and worse at home and abroad.

U. S. Rep. John E. Hunt (R-NJ) has called for a congressional investigation of "how much CIA money has been channeled to private organizations which was used for leftist purposes having nothing to do with the conduct of the cold war."

Uncle Dan From Doolie Says

I hear Mister Editor:

Dear Sir by the papers where Congressman Harold Collier of Illinois was a little disturbed about that $172.4 billion budget President Johnson was asking the Congress to pass. On account of this was going to be about $2 billion more than we took in. Congressman Collier was wondering if they want a few items that we could do without.

For instant, Congressman Collier reported he had discovered we got a Government set-up called the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency that employed 187 people. When it was set up in 1962 they were averaging $5,100 a year. After four years they were now averaging $17,000 a year. In the first place, he wanted to know how come their pay had increased double in four years. And in the second place, he said he was curious to know what they were doing. We was increasing our arms every day and wasn't getting no disarmament no place in the world.

I bring these figures up at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doolie said he had heard the answer right off. Said Ed, and the "do nothing" yep in Government was one of the best paying jobs they got. Ed could be wrong, Mister Editor, but he claims he ain't never been wrong but one time in his life and that was on when he thought he was wrong. It's pretty hard to pick a argument with a feller's that got them kind of credentials. Most of the fellers was agreed we got a heap of items where the budget could be cut down. Zeke Grubb reported he was reading this piece in the papers where the Government built a $225,000 apartment set up for the Indians of Wind River in Wyoming and when they got it finished they wasn't no Indians that would live in it. They claimed Indians like to live apart from other Indian families. But Zeke was of the opinion this would come under the segregation laws and them Indians was going to have to move into this building or lose their Federal aid.

It was general agreed at the session that them Congressman had ought to plug some of the spending leaks and they raised taxes. Bug Hookum was observing that it was hard to believe that we had to get around this way. The same country our fourfathers founded as a protest again taxation. But you had to forgive the fellers, Mister Editor, for complaining about these matters. Out here we ain't got much to do except get around and complain. We was like the feller running a service station on a lonely spot in a country road. When a lady stopped by for gas and ask him what they did around there fer customers he he said, "Lady, a round here we just don't get excited."

Yours truly
Uncle Dan

Sugar Cane Harvesting

ing equipment for Puerto Rico which has been moderately successful. Clayton said.

Thomson demonstrated an automatically controlled cutting level regulator on a self-propelled machine. This device, applied to Florida operations, would be ideal, Clayton said, because the machine would cut unevenly on the muck and manual cutting level control is inaccurate.

The J and I Company's Blue Bird cutter which has proven fairly successful in use in cane and on an iron road in Louisiana and is used in Florida in seed cane and selected mill cane, and J's recurrent cane harvester prototype demonstrated for the Field Day. Larry Lampo, Jr., President of J and I, described the operation of the two row harvester. The company has been working in cooperation with the Glades Sugar Harvesting Unit in operation in February, 1965 and experience in reassembling the harvester yielded four different types of cutting devices, Clayton said. Twelve of the J and I Blue Bird machines have been sold here in the past two years.

In the afternoon the Field Day participants attended a series of presentations developed by the USDA engineers here. In addition to Clayton, Hiram D. Whitmore is also working with the Harvesting Laboratory here.

The USDA is working on principles that can be incorporated into a successful harvesting unit. Clayton said. Two principles demonstrated were the auger pickup and chopping conveyor, and the double knife bottom cutting system. This system employed a clearing conveyor, a type cutting component was also demonstrated. This principle is quite new, working like the blade of a reel type mower the rotary device cuts the cane into six inch lengths. Also demonstrated at the permanent station field was the Cary Cane Combine. R. E. Shuler of the Cary Iron Works Opelousas Louisiana, explained the machine functions.

Moves of another machine, the Telf Australia harvester, now in the Bahamas, were shown participants.

"Ending the field day, Billy Cochran demonstrated cleaning operations he is investigating under a Department of Agriculture contract. Cooperation with the Louisiana State University Agriculture Engineering Department is being made for Florida for further testing after the end of the Louisiana season. Mechanical harvesting can contain a crop loss of 25 percent as compared with hand harvesting. Under study research is an 85 percent cut of this trash. Prototype machines demonstrated by private industry in the Field Day have cost up to $100,000 to develop. Clayton said. The cost of cooperating with plantation and among themselves, USDA engineers, the machinery and the facts. Victory in the cold war will never be achieved, if CIA funds are aiding socialist and worse at home and abroad.

ing toward a solution to the multiple problems faced in harvesting Florida cane.

The first problem was to get the cane off the ground. There has been a little success at this, Clayton said. There are now three or four machines that can be used fairly well but most do not remove the trash leaves and tops.

If the difficult Florida problem can be solved the results can be applied to other areas.

The aim is to develop machines to solve the problems now faced here. Progress shown at this year's Field Day is encouraging but problems still exist. Progress shown at this year's Field Day is encouraging but problems still exist.

Students of the Week

Joey Hudspeth

The summer week she spent working at the University of Florida Journalism Institute paid off for Joey Hudspeth, co-editor of the Rambler. After many hours spent on the annual, Joey was glad to see the last shipment leave Belle Glade. At the post office she said "at last I can have some time to goof off. But, I wish they'd hurry up and send back the finished annuals."

Joey can't resist the thrill of a sports event. She is an avid fan and will travel, with her family, hundreds of miles to see a good game. She follows all Ram competitions. Her family travels to Gainesville and Miami for college football games and has followed the American Legion baseball

Steve Kirshman

This is Steven Alan Kirshman's 12th year of attending school in Belle Glade. He has been in the Beta Club for three years and secretary of the Junior Civitan for two years. Being a member of these clubs and Junior Civitan for two years are Steve's favorite activities.

Steve played football this year and last. During his freshman and sophomore years he ran track. After saying his favorite class is drafting Steve said, "Teachers who think theirs is the only class we have is my pet peeve." He plans to be an architect and has already been accepted at Florida State University.

Clubs have also kept Joey quite busy. She is presently secretary of the Beta Club and treasurer of the Paramedics Club. She has served in F. H. A. and on the Student Council.

Her white Mustang is a familiar sight in Belle Glade. When driving, "poor" drivers become Joey's pet peeve.

Joey plans to attend Auburn. She begins classes there a week after graduation from BGHS. She visited the campus this year and said, "It's just great — just great. I wish I could have just stayed and started school."

Chosen as "Miss Junior," last year and "Best Dressed" this year, Joey is very popular with her classmates.

Letter To The Editor

What Did The Boycott Achieve?

Editors Note: This letter represents the opinion of only one student, not necessarily that of the parent class, student body, or administration. Letters on any subject or problem will be welcomed by the Ram Page Staff.

The students boycotted, the administration took notice, the cafeteria help was puzzled. But was anything accomplished?

As a result of the pressures of last week's student lunchroom boycott, improvement plans for the cafeteria were presented which, had lain in repose since the summer days of school planning. Why weren't these presented before — because the completion of the new junior high cafeteria was being awaited. THEN the plans would have supposedly been put into action.

When is or should I say was the completion of the junior high cafeteria scheduled? It is hoped that it will be finished within a few weeks, but it was also hoped to have been completed in October. What are the students supposed to do until then? A temporary condition has lasted for two-thirds of the school year.

Last week, the students were finally tired of the situation. They wanted better lunches or off-campus lunch privileges. So, they boycotted the lunchroom.

Now, the boycott is over and committees have been established to investigate the students' grievances. The pressure is off and the problem is not in the spotlight that the boycott created.

If the students do not remain organized and follow a definite plan of action, nothing will have been accomplished. The cafeteria staff says that it does not know what the students want. What happened to the results of the Student Council lunch survey? Why were these results not shown to the cafeteria staff?

A list of complaints and suggestions will have to be composed and the proper authorities notified. The food could be more appetizing with better preparation. The County Lunch Supervisor should be consulted and attention given to her advice.

The excuse given for the poor preparation is that with the junior high cafeteria problem the staff does not have time to improve its practices. But, even when the junior high students are served in their lunchroom, the high school cafeteria staff will still have to cook all their meals and transport them to the junior high. When will they possibly find time to improve the meals when they will still be cooking for the same amount of people on top of transporting more meals than they do now? What problem will the new task of serving the junior high students in their own cafeteria solve?

The boycott has brought attention to the problem, but we are given no promises of improvements until the completion of the junior high cafeteria. Then, we will see if the improvements are made. At that time, all the excuses and promises will not be enough. They will have to be replaced with action and results.

Thoughts From Vietnam

Editor's Note: John Sheehan is now stationed in Vietnam. He is serving as a hospital corpsman on the battle field. He will be writing articles for the Belle Glade Herald from time to time.

By John Sheehan
Each one of us realizes that when two people are engaged in conversation they must rely on words the speaker can pronounce and articulate audibly enough for the listener to understand. In turn the listener must understand the meaning of the words used by the speaker.

Having recently changed environments, I have experienced a gross overdose of meaningless words and phrases. My present associates use these freely in their vocabulary which reveals only their ignorance to my mind.

Now, let us take a look at what would occur if one of my associates requested a native worker to obtain for him a hammer. "Hey, papason (Vietnamese man), bring that goddamn hammer over here." Let us examine what the man has requested papason to do. After addressing the native to get his attention he requests that the native take the "goddamn" instrument for driving nails from where it is and transport it to where he is.

Well, suppose this native has been studying the English language. He would no doubt be able to understand what my associate's request was, but what kind of hammer is that? One that God has damned? Why would God damn a piece of wood and metal, and inanimate object? That is exactly what my associate has said.

What has God revealed to us through the inspired words of the Bible? The word "damned" is mentioned three times in the King James Version: Mark 16:16; Rom. 14:23; and 1 Thes. 2:12. In the first two references the pronoun "he" is used as the subject to be damned and in the last the pronoun "they" is used. The scripture is referring to people, human beings, not some inanimate object. Nowhere in the Bible is it said that God in vain, for Jehovah will not hold him guiltless that takes his name in vain: Exodus 20:7.

Let us consider what the apostle James recorded about the use of the tongue.

"For every kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea, it is tamed, and has been tamed of mankind; But the tongue can no man tame: it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. Thitherwith bless we God, even the Father; and thitherwith curse we men, which are made after the similitude of God. Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be." James 3:7-10.

This is not a new problem as you can see. James wrote about it centuries ago and what do we find today?—men blessing God and cursing their fellow man with the same mouth. Friends, why should you continue in displeasing God and showing your lack of knowledge by using these meaningless and idle words?

Let each one of us determine in his heart to use a vocabulary full of meaningful words that will not dishonor our Father in Heaven.

CARD OF THANKS

It is hard to put in words our appreciation for the many kindnesses shown us during the time of Kenneth's accident and hospitalization. We hesitate to mention names for fear of leaving out some who did so much, but our deepest gratitude goes to Dr. Brown, Dr. Gray, and Dr. Soto and entire staff of Glades General Hospital. Also, Troop Bill Richardson for his First-Aid at the scene of the accident.

Many thanks to those who brought food, offered their services, for the flowers, visits, cards, and the many phone calls of concern, for those who came to the hospital the night of the accident, and the ones who came and kept the children, those who donated gas for the many trips to the hospital in West Palm Beach, and the co-workers at South Puerto Rico Sugar Company, the foremen, and the executive personnel for their financial contributions. A special thanks to our pastor, Rev. R. L. Polk, and our church, as well as the churches in the Belle Glade, Pahokee, and Lake Harbor area for the many prayers that God surely heard and answered. Our deepest gratitude to all of you.

Edna Grayson

This week the newspaper staff has chosen as the student of the week Edna Grayson for her outstanding achievements. She has been a member of the LSH family since her entrance in high school. She is a faithful member of the Future Teachers of America, Historian of the Future Homemakers of America and President of her junior homeroom (11-2).

Edna has maintained a "B" average throughout her stay here with us. She is very active and has participated in many extra curriculum activities. Upon graduation, Edna plans to attend Lincoln Business School in Jacksonville, Florida, where she will major in IBM operations. Her hobbies are swimming and sewing.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Grayson. Edna was born on May 16, 1950 in Cleveland. She and her family resides in South Shore.

Marvin L. Groover

This week the newspaper staff has chosen Marvin L. Groover as student of the week. Marvin Groover has maintained a "B" average throughout his years at LSH school. He is a member of the senior patrol, LSH Marching Band, president of the senior class, an active member of the varsity basketball team, and advertising manager of the Yearbook Staff.

Marvin's favorite subject is history. His aspiration is to become a political science major. After finishing high school he plans to attend Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University (FAMU) in Tallahassee, Florida.

Marvin's favorite philosophy is "success." He believes that without success, it is impossible to lead the rest. Marvin has done a superior job in leading the seniors thus far. He has spent a lot of time and effort to help his fellow classmates reach their goals. We, as seniors, are proud to have such a hard working young man to guide us.

Marvin resides at 626 South West 7th Street with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy B. Williams. He was born October 6, 1949 in Newark, New Jersey. His hobbies are sports and playing music.

Kampus Highlights

The Girl Scout Cookie sale seems to be coming along fine. I am sure everyone enjoyed "Sing Out 66".

Seniors ordered their invitations on Monday.

The Student Council has begun preparations for the Student Elections.

Can you imagine there are only two more six weeks remaining in this school term?

The Dramatic Club really resented a wonderful play on last Thursday night.

The space program that was presented in the gym was quite interesting.

Patron ads can be bought from any senior for the Senior Class Play.

The English Department received an Opaque Projector.

Kampus Highlights

The Senior Patrol is really working hard. After that basketball game between the Faculty and the Senior Varsity team, we can easily say that we have our share of athletes.

I'm sure you have noticed the art work on display at the Avenue E entrance of the school. We should congratulate these students for a job well done.

Dramatics Club Presentation

Thursday evening March 2, 1967, the Dramatics Club presented their major presentation "High Window," by Kerne Powers. All who missed this presentation by the Dramatics Club, under the Direction of Mrs. E. Harrell, have really missed a great performance. Each character portrayed his role magnificently. Hats off to this group for a job well done.

But let's not forget the dance team. To me, they are born dancers. Their bodies were as a language telling a musical story. Again, congratulations to the Dramatics Club and Sponsor for a tremendous performance.

LSH Wins Consolation Trophy In Conference Tournament

The Mighty Bobcats journeyed to West Palm Beach to take on the Greyhounds of Lincoln Park. The Mighty Cats started the game shooting from all directions and playing terrific defense. At the end of the first quarter, the scores were 14-4 in favor of the Bobcats.

The Cats formed a shooting trio. Haynes shooting from the center and Walker and Frenney shooting from the corners.

Management & Family Economics

In our present era, young people have control over sizeable sums of money. The pocket of junior and senior high school students has increased 300 per cent during the last 15 years, from $2.50 to $10.00 weekly, according to recent figures reported in Scholastic Magazine.

The Management Class of Lake Shore High School conducted a class survey and found that out of a class of 23, 48 percent received weekly allowances, and 35 per cent received allowances from $1.00 to $4.00. Thirty-seven percent saved money and of this amount 13 percent saved money in a bank.

It was interesting to note that 17 per cent saved for the purpose of a college education. Thirty-nine per cent had credit and 22 per cent had credit in department stores. Seventy-eight per cent spent their money on small items and 48 percent spent money on records only. Records were kept by 47 percent of the students while only 13 percent kept book entries.

It was found that the mother in 44 percent of the cases managed the money or budget. Seventeen per cent owned homes and 34 per cent were paying on mortgages. Sixty-eight percent had health, accident insurance and 70 per cent owned life insurance.

The results of this survey gave the homemaking teacher, Mrs. Meek, an understanding of her students and a basis from which to work.

The Bobcats took advantage of a seventeen point lead at the end of the third period and won the game with the score 83-56. Frenney led the Bobcats with 20 points while Haynes and Walker tied with 18 points.

After defeating Lincoln Park the Mighty Bobcats were defeated by Carver of Delray. Charlie Slater led Carver with 24 points while Francis trotted behind with 15 points. LSH couldn't close the seven point gap led Carver had on them. The final score was 86-73.

LSH took the consolation trophy, signifying 3rd place, while Carver walked off with the runners up trophy, leaving Roosevelt to collect the Championship Trophy.

THE GLADES SHOWS ITS WINTER HARVEST TO VISITORS

CELERY. Knee deep in a celery patch, watching a mule train harvesting 10 rows at a time, visitors sometimes just can't believe it's real.

CARROTS. "I don't believe it. You don't have to plow up of our, they just come up!" The carrots, big bunches of them, come easily out of the black dirt to amaze this visitor. On the tour, you get to keep what you "harvest," and visitors come away with their arms full.

ARM LOADS. This tour member solved the problem of just what to do with all that celery by munching on it for the rest of the trip.

The Guided Tour of Agriculture, leaving twice a day from the Holiday Inn and conducted by W. K. "Spence" Whitlock take winter visitors through the "Nations Winter Salad Bowl." The tour varies, it goes where the action is. Who's harvesting what, determines the day's itinerary.

RADISHES. "Get out there and get dirty!" Spence Whitlock tells his group. Here in the radish patch, the big question was, "How do they get those rows so straight?"

SUGAR CANE. Dried, sweet, Sugar comes from THAT? Yep, and it is not a trip through the Glades unless you munch some. So Spence cuts it into his size cane and once everyone's had a taste, they all want more.

Gov. Claude Kirk will speak at the closing banquet of the south Florida World Trade Conference in Tampa, Mar. 17. The meeting is sponsored by the Florida State Chamber of Commerce and the Florida State Chamber of Commerce and the Florida Ports & Foreign Trade Council.

Forecast For Clothing and Textiles

From a meeting of economists in Washington comes the outlook for textiles and clothing in the year ahead. Miss Mary Todd, Extension Home Economics Agent, says the report predicts that supplies of apparel will continue large and widely varied in fiber, fabric and style. It also indicates more textiles of noncellulosic fibers and more shoes of leather substitutes. High consumer and military demand as well as increasing manufacturing costs may raise apparel prices. The economists predict the continuing trend toward new and improved textile products.

The durable press concept is here to stay. There'll be new developments, for example, all-cotton fabrics with good abrasive resistance. Under investigation is a way to make the durable press fabrics available to the woman who sews at home, with accessible cutting and sewing patterns. The report also indicates more textiles of noncellulosic fibers and more shoes of leather substitutes. High consumer and military demand as well as increasing manufacturing costs may raise apparel prices. The economists predict the continuing trend toward new and improved textile products.

Make New Clothes Last Much Longer

New clothes can be made to last longer by taking steps to strengthen the apparel before it is worn. Miss Mary Todd, Extension Home Economics Agent, suggests examining and reinforcing clothing, particularly children's apparel and garments that will receive hard wear. Turn the garment wrong side out and start with the inside. First examine armholes, areas. Set-in sleeves so often break loose at the underarm. For more durability, sew a second row of stitching on top of the first, on the underarm section only. If the garment is styled with a kimono sleeve, cut a piece of bias tape about 3 inches in length and press this strip flat. Place strip on top of open seam along the greatest curve of the opening. Machine-stitch from the right side of garment about 1/8 of an inch on either side of seamline. Another area that takes stress and strain is the waistline. A second row of stitching will give added support to this seamline. Reinforce the crotch area. Turn pants inside out, and pull the leg inside the other. Machine stitch around the curve on top of stitching already there. So often machine made buttonholes are poorly done. If you work around the open edges with a buttonhole stitch you will not only make them look more attractive but will add life to them.
